

Another 1st For Pearson

By ELAYNE GILBERT
Hurricane Assistant News Editor

This afternoon a distinguished grey-haired man will close a black door quietly and leave the president's office for the last time as head of the University.

On Monday, Dr. Jay F. W. Pearson, last remaining member of the original faculty, will step upward and become the first UM chancellor.

Sitting behind a brown mahogany desk, Dr. Pearson reminisced about the 36 years that he has been a part of the faculty—time spent helping the coral rock college grow into the largest private institution of higher learning in the southeastern United States.

Relaxing in his green-leather chair, Dr. Pearson lit a cigarette and spoke slowly about the years before he became UM's second president.

"I met Dr. Bowman F. Ashe in 1921 when I first went to the University of Pittsburgh. When he opened UM, he asked me to join him."

"I was one of the original twelve professors here. I married a girl who was in the first University freshman class," he said with twinkling eyes.

From the first, Dr. Pearson assumed administrative duties. He rose slowly and with the passing years, he was given more responsibilities.

He helped rebuild the board of trustees, was the first dean of faculties, dean of administration, director of summer sessions and vice president.

At the death of Dr. Ashe in 1953, he was selected to head the University.

Dr. Pearson looked down at his brown-carpeted floor for a minute.

"I've been pleased with our progress in the last 9 years. When I became president we had a $1 million endowment fund, now it's about $12 million," he said with a smile.

Dr. Pearson believes that UM has great potentials for development. "I've seen a lot happen in 36 years. But now, my work will take a different turn. My office is at 515 in the Ingraham Building," he remarked.

As chancellor, Dr. Pearson plans to develop sources and contacts. He wants to increase the interest and support of the community towards the University.

"I want to serve the University in whatever manner that I can," Dr. Pearson said firmly.

Foreign Center Closed

All of the student services formerly handled by the International Center are being turned over to other already-existing departments.

The International Center until June 1 had been in charge of foreign student admission and course counseling, as well as administration of the English for foreigners program and the Hispanic-American Studies program.

The Center closed after an administrative subcommittee reported that most of its services appeared to be routine and able to be handled by other departments, according to Dr. H. Franklin Williams, vice president.

But the subcommittee recognized the need here for a program to promote research and development of matters relating to Hispanic America. A task force is currently studying the creation of some means of promoting such a program.

Dr. R. S. Boggs, former director of the Center, will return to teaching.

Admissions counseling of foreign students has been transferred to the Admissions Office, and counseling of students is under the supervision of the dean of students. Dr. Yarrow has continued as a foreign student counselor.

New Branch Shuts-Down

A move to establish a new Riviera Beach Branch was turned down in an effort to strengthen and consolidate programs in Miami. The Fort Lauderdale Center was closed last week.

The extension centers are opened both all day and in the evenings.

The growth of the Florida junior college program and the establishment of the new Florida-Atlantic University at Boca Raton were the official reasons given for the closings.

No Books Today

Moving of books and periodicals to the Otto Richter Library from Merrick began this week. The periodicals room will be transferred first. The reference library will be next, and the circulation department last.

The entire operation should be completed Monday.

Students and faculty should note that service in either building may be impossible on Friday and Saturday.

3rd UM President

By SUSAN NEUMAN
Hurricane Editor

For the second time in 36 years a new president will be welcomed to the University of Miami.

Dr. Henry King Stanford's arrival may not be as eventful as his departure from Birmingham Southern where students surprised him with a going away party, but it will be a high mark in his career and that of the University of Miami.

Dr. Stanford will arrive by car from Alabama over the week end. He is scheduled to officially take over the duties of his office on Sunday, July 1.

He has been the president of three other colleges in his 25-year career: Georgia Southwestern College, Georgia State College for Women and Birmingham-Southern College. He also served as assistant chancellor of the University of Georgia system.

For Dr. Stanford this is a big step upward from Birmingham.

The faculty at UM, of about 1,000, is equivalent to the student body at Birmingham-Southern. UM's student body is about 14,000—a sizable difference.

Dr. Stanford plans to take over the reins of UM with a firm grip. At a visit with student leaders earlier Dr. Stanford quietly, but firmly, assured them that, "I'm going to be the boss."

He also hinted that there would be changes, then added "perhaps not right away, but soon." Dr. Stanford gave no indication what his plans were. He explained, "I want to see what is here now, before I make any changes."

Liberty Won't Pay $$ Toll

By BILL GREENE
Hurricane Staff Writer

The University of Miami is still trying to collect its share of last December's Liberty Bowl receipts, according to UM Athletic Director Jack Harding.

Over $16,000 is still owed Miami from the game with Syracuse which Miami lost 15-14.

The income from the game was to be divided with equal shares of 37 per cent to UM and to Syracuse, and 25 per cent to the Liberty Bowl Association.

However, the harsh weather kept the attendance down to 15,712, and the cost of promotion came to more than 25 percent of the receipts. Miami has received only $32,138.65 of the anticipated $48,786.63.

Harding said that the payments so far have covered the expenses of the trip and UM has yet to receive any profit from the game.

Both UM and Syracuse have given the Liberty Bowl Association until July 1 to pay the remaining money. If the $16,647 isn't paid at that time, the matter will be turned over to the National Collegiate Athletic Association which can withhold approval of the bowl event.

Harding is confident that Miami will be paid. He said that Bill Dudley of the Liberty Bowl Committee is sincere in his efforts.

According to Harding, Dudley is trying to interest the city of Philadelphia in sponsoring the event because of the publicity and the money which the game brings to the city.

Harding said the "Liberty Bowl trip was a pleasant experience for the team and good for the school because of the nationwide TV broadcast of the game."

'Drop' Deadline

Deadline for dropping courses is next Friday, July 6.

Courses dropped after Friday will be graded WP if the student has attained passing grades, or WE if he has failing grades.

NY Hospital Head Becomes Med Dean

By ELAYNE GILBERT
Hurricane Assistant News Editor

Dr. Hayden C. Nicholson, succeeding Dr. Edward W. D. Norton, interim dean, will take over as Dean of the School of Medicine in early July.

The third dean to head the medical school, Dr. Nicholson has spent most of his professional life in medical education. He began his professional career on the medical faculty of the University of Michigan, his alma mater.

During World War II he served in the Medical Corps of the U.S. Air Force. He worked in the altitude training program and as Chief of the Physiological Branch Office of the Air Force. Recently Dr. Nicholson served as executive director of the Hospital Council of Greater New York. He has written articles for leading medical magazines.

In accepting the position, Dr. Nicholson said, "I am approaching my new assignment with a great deal of enthusiasm. One cannot help being impressed by the remarkable development of this School of Medicine in the ten years since it was founded."

Get Your Shakespeare The Easy, Painless Way

By BETSY HILBERT
Hurricane Staff Writer

A rare opportunity of getting Shakespeare not only painlessly but pleasantly this summer is offered to UM'ers, as the Southern Shakespeare Repertory Theatre opens its second summer season in Beaumont Lecture Hall.

The festival, which will last from July 10 through Aug. 5, is designed to recreate the spectacle and excitement of the original productions—making Shakespearean plays as exciting as modern ones. To do this, directors Delmar E. Solem, Mike McElhaney and Hank Diers are employing color, spectacle and original music (under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Fardig, music librarian).

Four plays—"Hamlet," "Twelfth Night," "The Tempest" and "Julius Caesar"—will be presented in nightly rotation by the Company, which includes professional and student actors from all over the company.

"Most students will have to read these plays at some point in their college career," commented Director McElhaney, "and it's a lot more fun to see them played."

Tickets are on sale now at the Ring Theatre box office at $1.75 for the rear section of Beaumont and $2.50 for the front. Season books for all four plays cost $6 and $8. It's advisable to reserve early—like now.

Summer Economy

With a summer population of approximately 5,000 students attending classes—more than some schools have during a regular academic semester—plus faculty, administrators and employees, the University drastically cut the services normally available to its people.

The soda shop in the Student Union closes two and a half hours earlier. The library, now in the process of moving into its new building, closes an hour earlier and does not open at all on Sunday, the only day students do not have to be in class all day.

Granted, the enrollment is off about one-third what it is during a regular session, but that is not a reason for depriving students of study time in the library — if this college plans to raise academic standards — or time to use the Student Union in the evenings.

Morals . . . Going Down

A small group of God-fearing pilgrims established a country in which God could be worshiped as His people wished. Now a minority group of God-less dissenters are attempting to abolish Him.

The communistic non-religious have apparently infiltrated the highest spots in our national government. Congress is in an uproar over the Supreme Court's "interpretation of the constitution" and with good reason. The Monday ruling against the voluntary prayer readings of New York schools is definite proof of a nation under moral decay.

Before the last world war an American crusader, Gerald L. K. Smith, of the America First party, warned the people of planned communistic infiltrations — most of what he said has happened. Now again, someone has stepped forward to show this country which path it is traveling on. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa Tribune, is warning of a coming "fall of an empire" — America.

But no one seems to want to listen.

'Tis A Sad Day

It must be the luck of the Irish.

When the University of Miami finally gets a bowl bid, the bowl goes broke.

For the first time in nine years Miami was invited to play in a post season game at the Liberty Bowl—and lost by one point to Syracuse.

Adding disappointment to the loss, Miami recently found out that chances are very good that they may never get paid for the bowl game.

More Bumps

To The Editor:

In the year that they have existed, the "speed bumps" in the residence areas have helped to eliminate the speeding problem on campus. However, the problem still exists along the driveway leading to the Ashe Building. I hope that the administration will act soon to erect a "speed bump" on this dangerous road to eliminate the speeding by cars coming from the parking lots in that area.

There are approximately 4,500 students attending summer sessions at the University of Miami. This means that there are approximately 4,500 students without any semblance of responsible leadership among them.

For example, if one were to go up to the Student Government office, he either finds the door locked or very little work of any sort in progress.

Great expenses are incurred in order to keep our student leaders in their positions. Yet for the entire summer the student body is without adequate representation. This is typical of a general lack of student leadership that has permeated the University during the last two years.

The reason may well be the stifling number of administrative rules, regulations, orders and decrees which have ulcerated the incentive of our student leaders.

So many of their predecessors have been frightened out of their proverbial wits by high University administrators over the past two years.

The height of student leaders' disregard for the well being of their constituents was exemplified in last year's Interfraternity Council. Their pride and joy was a concession allowing them to "enforce" the rules and regulation ordered upon the fraternity system, despite the fact that some of these rules were so poor that they were subsequently altered by the Administration.

All this is not intended as a denunciation of these student leaders because, in a larger sense, they are not responsible for inadequate representation of fellow students.

Rather, it is an indictment of University administrative policy which, instead of creating an environment that would allow the stimulation of our best student leaders, has instead created a militaristic chain of command in which the "student leaders" are viewed only as the instruments to filter down to the students the latest regulations coming from the great white tower.

I hope that the future will bring a more favorable balance between the student, the leader and the administration.

Dance & Movie

Chuck Stewart and his band will play at the free dance, from 8:30-11:30 tonight at the Student Union patio, rain or shine.

"Away All Boats," starring Jeff Chandler, George Nader, and Lex Barker, will be shown at the Student Union patio at 8 p.m. Thursday. The film, which is in technicolor, will last for approximately two hours.

Foreign Home Shuts

By GONZALO E. RIVERA

(Editor's note: this is a foreign student's opinion on the recent closing of the International Center.)

The International Center office was closed down by the administration because they could find no need for it. But there are 800 foreign students who found this office a home away from home.

I do not know how the administrative resolutions are made here, but if there was an investigation, how was it carried out and who performed it?

Closing the International Center means destroying 800 dreams and 800 goals. I have discovered that there has been made no provision for a foreign student's office, not to speak of the planned International House—to which a small fund has already been dedicated.

But more important were the administrative provisions which the Center made to students of all nations, including Americans. The Center provided for the integration of all foreign students into the general student body, thus making for bonds of alliance and friendship among the nations.

Bang Up Introduction

A watermelon shoot and several fireworks displays are being planned for July 4 celebrations.

The Orange Bowl fireworks will begin at 7:30 p.m. Before the display, the Dade County Citizens Committee will introduce UM's new president, Dr. Henry King Stanford.

Other fireworks displays will be shown at drive-in movies.

The highlight of the Coral Gables Youth Center "bring your own food" cookout is the watermelon shoot.

Summer Time Living Is Easy—Or Is It?

By ELAYNE GILBERT
Hurricane Assistant News Editor

Most students chuck their books and become beachcombers during the summer. But UM students manage to find time to go to the beach and school.

A record number of students are cramming six month classes into six weeks while attending summer school. Their reasons are as varied as the students.

Jerry Lovenworth, senior accounting major, feels that summer school is not any harder than the regular school term. "It's all a matter of applying yourself. If you want to work you do," he observed.

Many students think that summer school gives them a wide latitude in the number of courses

It's A Record

More students than ever before are attending summer classes here.

Total registration for this session as of Thursday was 4,584, including 1,320 evening students — a rise of 756 over the total enrollment last summer at this time.

Monday registration figures were higher than any previous day in the history of the University.

they can take. "In the winter I can only handle 15 credits," exclaimed Joe Kaminsky, senior government major. "Now I can take a total of 22 credits for both sessions. It costs less too."

Since summer is vacation time, many students attending UM are here for unique reasons.

"I'm here because I wanted to get out of the heat," said Fred Berney, radio-tv senior. "It's awfully hot out, but it's much cooler in the classrooms."

But not all students study in the library. "I study on the beach," said Susan Rushford. "I don't really get much work done," she admitted.

'Pops' To Honor Austrian Musician

By LEE RODEN
Hurricane Staff Writer

A tribute to Fritz Kreisler, Austrian violinist-composer, will be part of the program when Hugo Fiorato conducts the "Pops" Symphony at 8:30 p.m. Sunday in Miami Beach Auditorium.

Kreisler's "Praeludium and Allegro," transcribed by Fabien Sevitzy, UM Symphony conductor, will be played along with "Liebeslied" and "Liebesfreud."

Sharing the limelight with Fiorato is Albert DaCosta, Metropolitan Opera tenor. DaCosta played the lead role of Samson in the UM Symphony opera, "Samson and Delilah."

DaCosta has also performed in "Lohengrin," "Otello," and "Pagliacci," as well as playing the title role in Wagner's "Parsifal."

In the Sunday concert while the audience enjoys the casual atmosphere enhanced by red checkered table cloths and potent beverages—he will sing two arias — Celeste Aida from Verdi's "Aida," and Che Gelida Manina, from Puccini's "La Boheme."

Also featured will be Benjamin Britten's "Matinee Musicales," based on the second suite of five movements from Rossini.

Fiorato is the conductor of the New York City Ballet Orchestra in addition to being a violinist with the Radio String Quartet.

Tickets, priced from $1.25 to $2.75 are available now at the UM Symphony, Miami Beach Auditorium, Cordelia's, UM Ticket Office, Amidon's and the Allegro Music House.

Parlez-Vous Only French?

Vowing to speak nothing but French for the next eight weeks, forty secondary school teachers meet here for a summer language institute program.

The group is here to improve language ability and find new concepts in methods of teaching. Classes will meet five days a week, with special lectures, laboratories and movies.

Movies in French with English subtitles, will be shown at 7 p.m. Thursdays in Merrick 315.

The movie schedule is: July 3 — La Belle et La Bete; July 10 — Journal d'un Cure de Camagne; July 17 — Porte des Lilas; July 24 — Maigret Tend un Piege; July 31 — Lettres de Mon Moulin.

All's Fair Game Except For...

The crush of regular session parking has been alleviated for the summer months.

Students are now permitted to park in either housing or commuter lots. Stickers are not required for these areas during both sessions of summer school.

Lots marked visitor, faculty, administration, employee, and disabled must be used only by those designated persons. Improperly marked cars in these lots will be ticketed.

Presidents Shape UM's Destiny

By LEE RODEN
Hurricane Staff Writer

Both Presidents Bowman F. Ashe and Jay F. W. Pearson have contributed their special talents to this expanding University. Dr. Henry King Stanford will now have his opportunity to further raise the University's standards.

In March, 1926, Dr. Ashe became the fledgling school's first executive secretary. He was an extremely busy man in those days, for it was his job to obtain a faculty, arrange courses of study, and supervise the financing.

Only eight months later—a month after the opening of the Anastasia Building for classes—he became the school's first president. The University was saddled with a $500,000 debt resulting from the devastating hurricane and the collapse of the land boom. He was loyal to his faculty and borrowed from his insurance policy to pay their salaries.

ENROLLMENT ZOOMS

There were only 275 students that first year, but Dr. Ashe was able to witness the growth of the University throughout the 26 years of his presidency. The enrollment increased and modern buildings, notably the Memorial and Merrick Buildings, were constructed.

But what must have been of greatest pleasure for him was the partial fulfillment of the University's early goals. The interchange with Latin America of professors, students and the development of related courses made the university a useful agent for amity between the two Americas.

The pursuit of scientific research in marine biology and tropical medicine grew from the fact that South Florida is one of few places in the U.S. where research can be applied directly to the problems of the subtropics. The creation of a world graduate school of tropical agriculture and biology was a major step.

President Pearson was to help fulfill this last goal, for he was the University's first zoology professor.

... Founding Father

DR. PEARSON
... Boosted School

PRESIDENT STANFORD RECEIVES ANOTHER DEGREE
... But This One's Strictly Unofficial

President Ashe requested his services while Dr. Pearson was in British Guiana researching tropical biology. He accepted the invitation, arriving after the hurricane.

He almost immediately set up underwater studies and established courses in marine science, affecting the reputation which UM has as a leader in marine studies.

PEARSON INITIATES PROGRAMS

As the years passed Pearson held the offices of secretary of the University, dean of administration, dean of faculty, and in 1947, vice president of the University. He was inaugurated president on May 7, 1953, following President Ashe's death.

The University saw innovations during President Pearson's term. The honors program for freshmen was initiated; the Air Force and Army ROTC flying programs at UM began; there was an elevation of admission requirements.

In addition, many buildings were erected during this period. The Ashe Administration Building was completed in the fall of 1955; three additions to the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery were constructed; Eaton Residence Hall and the Arnold Volpe Building of the School of Music opened in Sept., 1954. The Baron de Hirsch Meyer Building, Mary B. Merritt Panhellenic Building, Albert Pick Music Library, University College, and the Otto G. Richter Library Building, were all completed during President Pearson's administration.

On Sunday, Dr. Henry King Stanford, who has been president of Birmingham-Southern College for the last five years, will take over. He has been described as "an epitome of what an educational institution president should be."

Although these three men have had varied backgrounds, they have all shared one goal—the development of this University into a top-notch institution.

Nick Spinelli Returns To School After Absence

NICK SPINELLI
... OK From Dean

By LEE WOODS
Hurricane Sports Editor

Nick Spinelli, best remembered for his 60-yard touchdown run in the Liberty Bowl last fall, has returned to the University of Miami and will attend summer school.

Nick was suspended in the spring for disciplinary reasons, none of which the football office would disclose.

Certain provisions of his release stated that he would have to make up 12 credits in the summer to obtain eligibility for the coming football season.

Nick, after getting the final okay from the Dean of Men's office, is preparing for both summer sessions and spring football practice.

"It will be rough," he said.

"The subjects I am taking are quite difficult. But I hope that I will be able to do well. I want to thank everyone who had faith in me throughout my troubles," he said.

Spinelli is one of the football team's most valuable players according to coaches and football experts. He was missed during the spring practice sessions held earlier this year.

Netters Lose In Finals

By LEE WOODS
Hurricane Sports Editor

The sunny west coast suddenly turned a shade darker last Saturday for UM's touring tennis team members John Karabasz and Rodney Mandelstam.

After reaching the finals of the NCAA Tennis Championship, held at Stanford University, Coach Dale Lewis' hopefuls fell short of first place at the hands of Rafeal Osuna, Mexico City, and Ramsey Earnhardt, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.

Karabasz, known for his hop-skip-jump approach to the ball, had trouble in the net and was unable to get his fire-ball serve over.

In team standings, Southern California once again took top honors.

Coach Dale Lewis, summer pro at the Denver Country Club, could not be reached for comment.
