Players who have come to me say that they’re strictly for me.”

—Charlie Tate

“Rumors about Coach Tate’s leaving have no foundation in fact.”

Henry King Stanford

When you work for an institution with a reputation like the University of Miami, you know they don’t buy rumors like that,” Tate said. “I’ve been here too long to have the backing of Dr. Stanfield and the Board of Trustees and that there has never been any reason made to take over direction of the program.

And if there is any reaction, if any, have the players shown complete confidence in me. They haven’t expressed any doubt.”

Tate didn’t discuss it with too many players. Tate said, “Not with any of them, because they’re not in the loop.”

“Don’t think it’s bad work on the upper or any, because they know that the coach’s job is to coach and it’s the players job is to get what they can out of the situation.”

And what about the rumors hanging about the team’s performance?”

Tate said the rumors were started by people who didn’t measure up like they expressed them, especially against, not you can be blamed for starting such a thing now.”

The loss of potential All-America fullback Tony Smith just prior to the season opener against a noisy blow, one which was used to compensate for a poor playing performance.

Pollution Hits Bathing Spots

By MARK REEMAN

Two nearby beach areas in Martha’s Vineyard are off-limits to bathers because of high fecal coliform bacteria levels. The beaches, Larin’s and Brant’s, are immediately across the street from each other, which makes it difficult to avoid the pollution.

A study by the Massachusetts Comprehensive Legal Defense Network of local towns taken on December 7 indicates that the beach has been contaminated by fecal bacteria for two consecutive days.

"It is only information which we received about pollution last week on our beaches which we do not have any pollution," according to the study.

The pollution was found on Larin’s beach, which was closed to the public, while Brant’s beach, which was open to the public, was found to have high levels of fecal coliform bacteria.

This is the second time that the beach has been closed to the public due to pollution levels.

The beaches will remain closed until further notice. The Massachusetts Comprehensive Legal Defense Network will continue to monitor the pollution levels and will issue updates as needed.

Cuban Teachers Retrain

Applications for the Cuban Teacher Retraining Program in the United States are being accepted, but the program will be closed on February 1, 1989, for the summer season.

How to apply to the program is the problem. The program has helped millions of Cuban citizens get Florida teaching certificates. The training is supported by funds from the Cuban Teacher Retraining Program under the U.S. government. The program's goal is to help Cuban teachers with no professional training.

Individual courses of study are planned for each participant, but these courses are not meant to be an interim course of study.

Those interested in the courses can contact the program by calling 1-800-624-4982, or by writing to the Department of Education, Program for Cuban Teachers, 101 Mario M. Diaz Blvd., Miami, FL 33127.

They were injured and not as effective as we had expected," he said.

In the letter to the new Tate, Tate said that "Charles Poston and the other safety people did the best they could." The Press said that the team showed strong and goal-oriented performance.

The coach said that the team showed strong and goal-oriented performance. "Something to offer today was a 30-60-90," he said. "We can't be as effective as we have been when we are injured."

The Tate was also at the holiday giving. "I think the Tate may be a part of the Christmas spirit," the coach said.

MANKIND GOING TO THE DOGS

George Coopersmith

The Miami Hurricane

Friday, Dec. 10, 1989

The American society, among other things, has an unaccountable fascination for dogs. Dogs are tactful, loyal organisms that should be used as backboards for the leg pins of owners. If anything, dogs should be appreciated for their simplicity, their existence and emotion. The Jack London novel, "Call of the Wild" shows how this was a dog, and because of his simple mind, he becomes an American.

Cooperators. In this modern, mechanistic, synthetic world, has managed to preserve the fundamental and intrinsic qualities of a primitive, essential, synthetic world. This is a heavy petting to which the true dog lover can attest.

It is of utmost tragic proportions the way in which many dog owners degrade their animal's social to an extent of losing that outer skin, the inner skin, that trained dog is indeed more interesting and healthy, but one has to consider the request which has to be submitted since the dog is a separate entity and should be given credit for doing so. Yet, dogs are often totally used for purposes to which they hold no cause, eerie walkers, hunters, for nightly strange rides, gambling, and other types of family entertainment.

Now, down, beg, defense, play dead. I don't know how many anyone can play Marine officer with a dog.

American dogs, a middle class in the most literal sense, most dog foods smell like a collection of synthetic chemicals. But, note this: Again, UM students are, sometimes more than likely, the best dogs you might find in the world. Another type of dog food is the "tastier food" mentioned by yourself. It is true; dogs can be made to ponder in their diatribes, blotted, gnawed pens. Some dogs eat paper food, which is the same as dog food for humans in the Army.

Man has also managed to purposefully breed a wide variety of unimportant dogs. These dogs are full of the sexual dissatisfaction. Due to this sexual dissatisfaction, such dogs often undergo sterilization, which is usually done by the breeder. The strategy of this type of a walk is that with the help of UM genetics, the dogs are usually dead until two or three months after trying to figure out something, and good job on the part.

Freedom Only Under Capitalism

David Drumm

It will start by defining my terms: Freedom: The totalitarian organization of government and society by a single, all-powerful dictator, centrally planned, nationalized, militarized, religious, and important, and the end of Communism: a system by which there is no private ownership of the means of production and all property is controlled by the state through the government.

Drumm: One of the most important systems of control that the government has is the legal system, both law and order, which are seen as the power of the state to control and keep the different classes in check.

Capitalism: A social system based on the recognition of individuals, individualism, which is where all property is privately owned.

Notice that capitalism is the only system that recognizes the existence of individual rights, that is political freedom. Political freedom means the absence of coercion of a man by his government, the absence of coercion of individuals to own property in which all property is privately owned.

I am not saying that the government does not play a role in our lives. We are in a capitalist society, but what I am saying is that the government does not play the same role in our lives as it does in a totalitarian society.

The only people who exist in a totalitarian society are the citizens who are in power and the bureaucrats who are in power.

Freedom only under capitalism: Freedom is only under capitalism, which is why it is important to recognize the different classes in society and the way that they interact with each other. But, I am not saying that capitalism is the only way to achieve freedom. The government should also be controlled by the people, not the other way around.

The remarkable news about the Society for the Preservation of the Fukien Temple in Boston is that there is no society. The story is a case in point. There is no society. If there is no society, it is not surprising that the Fukien Temple in Boston is in a state of neglect. But it is surprising that the temple is in a state of neglect, considering the efforts of the Chinese American community in the area. The temple, a historic Chinese building, was erected in the early 19th century and has been a symbol of Chinese culture and heritage for over 150 years. Despite its historical significance, the temple has been neglected for years due to the lack of funding and maintenance. The story is a reminder that preserving our cultural heritage is not just a matter of personal interest, but also a responsibility to future generations. The temple needs the support of the community to ensure its preservation and continued use.

We must act now to save this treasure of our heritage. The Fukien Temple is more than just a building; it is a symbol of our identity and a connection to our roots. We must come together to support the temple and ensure its continued existence.

Thank you for your attention and support.
'Twas The Night Before Vacation...

BY CRAIG PETERSON

Although most students occasionally slip now or three days of pre-vacation classes, what may be the all-time record for the last day missed goes to a former UM student who decided he would rather be in Pennsylvania than Miami, vaulted out in his car, and left — two and a half weeks before the vacation was scheduled to start.

Some instructors take a charitable view toward class cuts; some cancel class altogether and still others take delight in counting such the double or triple. All penalties aside, though, UM inevitably looks like Death Valley in mid-summer before every vacation.

'Twas the week before Christmas, The halls were empty, The test was over, and the semester seemed suddenly long. With five days to go, you could almost see the beach in the distance. The North's two hours away.

"They (UM) will take a white athlete of average intelligence but their black athletes have to be above average in everything." — Ray Bellamy

By ED LANG

The administration has now announced that the black athletes have to be above average in everything. This is not an unprecedented situation. But it is an unexpected one, especially since it came about in the middle of the season.

The black athletes, who are not only exceptional in their athletic ability but also in their scholastic ability, have been required to meet high academic standards all along. They have been expected to do well in their classes and to maintain a high level of academic performance. This requirement is not new to them, as they have been accustomed to it from the moment they entered the university. However, the administration has now raised the bar even higher, making it even more difficult for them to meet the expectations.

The white athletes, on the other hand, have been required to meet only average academic standards. This is in sharp contrast to the black athletes, who have been expected to do much more. This is not a fair system, and it is not surprising that the black athletes are feeling upset about it.

The administration has stated that this is a way to ensure that the black athletes are not taking away opportunities from the white athletes. However, this is not a valid reason, as the black athletes have been doing their best to excel in both academics and athletics. The administration has not provided any evidence to support this claim.

The black athletes have been feeling increasingly frustrated about this situation. They have been trying to address their concerns with the administration, but they have not received a satisfactory response. They have been left with no choice but to voice their concerns publicly, in order to bring attention to their situation.

The black athletes have been very successful in their athletic careers. They have won numerous awards and have represented the university in numerous events. This is a testament to their dedication and hard work. The administration should be proud of their accomplishments, rather than trying to undermine them.

The black athletes have been very successful in their academic careers as well. They have maintained high grades and have been accepted into prestigious graduate programs. This is a testament to their hard work and dedication in both academics and athletics.

The administration should be ashamed of their actions. They should be working to create a more equitable system, rather than trying to undermine the accomplishments of the black athletes. The black athletes deserve to be treated with respect and fairness. The administration should be working to create a system that is fair to all athletes, regardless of their race.

The black athletes have been feeling increasingly frustrated about this situation. They have been trying to address their concerns with the administration, but they have not received a satisfactory response. They have been left with no choice but to voice their concerns publicly, in order to bring attention to their situation.

Kisker: Optimist About UM Frost

By LESLEY MATYSIOW

The University of Miami's football season has been a disappointment for fans and players alike. And while the team may be down, the players and coaches are still optimistic about the future.

"I don't think we're going to win the conference this year," said Coach B.""But we're working hard every day to improve. I think our team is really coming together. We're going to be a better team next year.""

"I'm really looking forward to next year," said senior wide receiver Dave Kisker. "I think we have a lot of young players who are going to step up and help this team.""I think we'll be a better team next year. I'm really excited about next year.""

"And unlike most of the other airlines, when we offer the world, we mean it. Because TWA flies all the way around the world. To Moscow, London, Paris, Vienna, Athens, Hong Kong, Milan. And you'll see all those cities in the United States, too."

"But the best part is that you don't have to be a serious person to be a TWA hostess. We're looking for people who are outgoing and have a sense of humor. And if you're interested, you can sign up right now.""
